Big Attendance Assured At Exchange Charter Night

President Louis O'Niel of San ... State President of the Exchange Club, will be here Tuesday ... attend Charter Night of the Redwood City Exchange Club. This ... will be one of the big events of the season and an elaborate program has been prepared for the occasion. The charter will be presented to the local club by ... Milton M. Bird, president of the Burlingame - San Mateo Club. It is necessary to state the affair will be held in the Masonic hall Tuesday evening and that the established be attended by visitors from all parts of the state. Delegations from as far as San Francisco to Salinas have notified their intention of attending, and others are expected. About 150 members of the visiting clubs are expected to be in Redwood City for the event.

The first Exchange Club was formed in Detroit, Michigan, on April 11, 1911, by Chas. A. Berkey and a number of his friends and business associates. Before this social organization was completed many of these men had been meeting informally for the purpose of enjoying a hospitable lunch hour and exchanging experiences. These meetings started as far back as the year 1896. The business nd professional men who gathered together for these occasional luncheons had no official name for their organization but came to be known as the Toastmaster's Club and gradually took on many of the attributes of the present day Service Club. Four members of this original Toastmaster's Club are still members of the Exchange Club of Detroit.

It was Mr. Berkey's idea to form an organiaztion of Detroit men, each representing a different business or profession, which would contain officers, have certain definite ideal and purposes, and which would meet each week at a specified time.

At the first meeting of this group the name of "Exchange" was selected for the Club.

The second club to be formed was at Toledo on January 3, 1913. This club was patterned after the one in Detroit. Shortly afterwards clubs were formed at Cleveland, Ohio, and at Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Then the National Exchange Club was incorporated with the provision that each affiliated club be given equal representation and have equal voice in the policies of the national organization.

The first national convention was held in Toledo in 1917, at which time plans were made for launching an extension program to enlarge the organization's field of usefulness.

From a nucleus of four clubs the Exchange has developed into a great national organization represented in every state.

Every club in the country has had its part in this wonderful achievement. Some clubs have rendered active assistance in the forming of other clubs and Exchangites everywhere have responded unselfishly to the call of service.

It is the purpose of all Exchange Clubs to work in unity for the betterment of business conditions and for the general good of the communities in which they function.

In a national way, the Exchange Clubs have been specially interested in the following problems:

Excessive Law Making.
The Back to School Movement.
Boys' Work.
Juvenile Court Work.
Tax Reduction.
The Teaching of American ism.
The Control of Cancer.
The Care of the Indigent Mother
Recreation and Playground Work.

The slogan of Exchange is "Unity for Service," and this means an unselfish service to humanity.

In the membership of Exchange you will find many men of national and international importance. The late President Harding was a member of the Exchange Club of Mansfield, Ohio, and President Calvin Coolidge is a member at Rutland, Vermont. In speaking of Exchange, President Coolidge recently said, "Organizations of this kind have, undoubtedly, been doing a useful service, but none along more patriotic lines than the Exchange Club. As a member of the organization, and somewhat familiar with the excellent work it is doing, I feel that you have an opportunity for great usefulness."

Every Exchangite subscribes and attempts to live up to the following covenant:

Accepting the divine privilege of single and collective responsibility as life's noblest gift, I covenant with my fellow Exchangites:

To consecrate my best energies to the uplifting of Social, Political and business ideals;

To discharge the debt I owe to those of high and low estate who have served and sacrificed that the heritage of American citizenship might be mine;

To honor and respect law, to serve my fellowmen, and to uphold the ideals and institutions of my country;

To implant the life-giving, society-building spirit of service and comradeship in my social and business relationships;

To work in Unity with those seeking better conditions, better understandings, and greater opportunities for service.

CHANGE OF DIRECTORS IN REDWOOD CITY BANK

Joseph B. Perry, prominent businessman of this city and for many years a member of the advisory committee of the Bank of Italy branch here, was appointed this week a director of the First National Bank of Redwood City and the San Mateo County Savings Bank. The appointment of Perry followed the acceptance of the resignation of J. C. Williamson.

Williamson is one of the original stockholders of the two banking institutions and for the past ten years has been a member of the board of directors. He was recently elected president of the First National Bank of Pescadero and it was on account of the press of business in this connection as well as with his other business interests that he was forced to give up his position in the local bank. His resignation was accepted with regret by the other directors.

"Absolutely, Mister Jiggs!" replies the hard-boiled city editor "and write a 'box" for the greatest movie star of them all——."

"Who's that?" inquisitively interrupts Jiggs.

"Why, Joe Martin, himself, of course---he'll be there."

The chief address before the Redwood Ciy Kiwanis Club last Wednesday was made by Prof. Carl Anderson of the faculty of the Sequoia Union High School. With the aid of the micro-projector, an instrument which throws a nighly magnified picture of extremely minute objects on a screen. Prof. Anderson demonstrated the methods now employed of teaching by visual demonstration. Sections of plant stems were exhibited showing the cellular structure and the image of small portions of the tail of a pollywog was shown in which the blood vessels and fiberous structure could be seen on a large scale.

Rev. R. J. Currie was chairman of the meeting and introduced Prof. Anderson. Rev. A. E. Clay was to have been the speaker Wednesday but was called to another part of the state. He will address the club next Wednesday.

It owns more than 15 colleges and seminaries and maintains more than 1,373 Cristian day schools. It has hospitals, orphanages, and institutions of charity throughout the country. It owns and controlls K. F. U. O., a large radio broadcasting station in St. Louis and is preaching and broadcasting the teachings of the Bible.

The Rev. Paul H. D. Lang, the pastor of Redeemer Lutheran Church, was born in Hooper, Nebraska. He was graduated from St. Paul's College, Concordia, Mo., in 1922, and matriculated in the Concordi Theological Seminary of the Lutheran church in St. Louis, Mo., in the fall of the same year. NEW PRODUCT ADDED TO LOCAL FACTORY

Work is being completed on a new branch of the Pacific Portland Cement Co., at their plant in this city in which agricultural lime will be manufactured from the shells dredged from the floor of the bay. The new building which will house this branch of the industry is now in course of construction and will when completed cost in the neighborhood of $150,000. In this part of the plant the shells instead of being converted into cement will be calcined and ground for lime and for the use of the poultry farms.

The construction of a second unit for the plant is now under consideration and will it is thought he started within the near future.

SAN CARLOS ELECTION RETURNS INCUMBENTS

The results of the election held at San Carlos Monday for city officers showed a large majority in favor of the incumbent trustees, the only incumbent who was running and was not elected being John Cowgill. Dr. Gatchell another trustee did not enter the race Mayor George B. Sesnon and Trustees W. J. Scott and J. B. Bryan were returned with a good plurality. The two members of the board are E. R. Burton and J. H. Martin. The defeated candidates were Trustee J. E. Cowgill and C. Haydock and E. H. James. City Clerk J. M. Edling and Treasurer B. A. Lindberg were unopposed. The vote cast in the order of the number of votes received was for the trustees as follows: Martin, 166; Scott, 144, Burton, 141; Sesnon, 139; Bryan, 136; Cowgill 108; James, 100; Haydock, 99.

Home Town Products

A great deal is being said today about community development. Along with the idea of this development, community spirit must be sowed deep in the consciousness of the people; a spirit which is eager and anxious to further the factors which make this community development possible.

Here in Redwood City we have many opportunities to boost for community development, but in this particular instance we will only take into consideration one industry, which is doing much to build up Redwood City. The Pratt-Low Canning Co. maintains an extensive plant here and during the canning season distributes thousand of dollars each week to employees and growers. Surely this is a big advantage to Redwood City and should be encouraged. Here the finest fruit from the best fruit section of California is preserved in the best manner known to modern industry. So popular is the pack of this concern becoming to the trade in various parts of the world, that machinery and floor space is being considerably enlarged for the coming season's business. Yet to find the compete line of their products on the local grocer's shelves is an impossibility. However, you undoubtedly buy the products of the local cannery under private labels.

Every concern has a particular pride in its own label of goods, a desire to make it the very best and to see it demand the attention that is worthy of the best efforts in its production. We take it that Pratt-Low Co. is no exception. Housewives of Redwood City have a great opportunity to show their community spirit in this instance and materially boost community development. Specify Pratt-Low canned goods when ordering from your local merchant, and he will be anxious to carry the local product in stock.

A visit to this plant will convince anyone of the cleanliness and efficiency of its operation. Then why not make Pratt-Low brands household words?

CITY BRIEFS

Mrs. Frankhlin Swart, who has been critically ill in San Francisco for several months, was able to return to her home on Eaton avenue this week and is very much improved in health. You are promised an evening of unusual entertainment at the I. O. O. F. hall next Tuesday evening, April 20th., when the local Rebekah lodge will hold a card party. Many novel features are promised and many handsome prizes will be given away during the evening. A well planned program has been prepared and the committee has left nothing undone to make the affair a success.

TWO PRISONERS EFFECT ESCAPE FROM JAIL HERE

The escape of two prisoners from the county jail was efected at an early hour Monday morning, when a lock was picked and the prisoners escaping to the jail yard, climbed over the fence to freedom. The two men were Maurice C. Allen, a convicted burglar, and Archie Gosney, a trusty, both 23 years of age.

Allen was arrested and convicted together with George Dawson James Clinton and Merritt Higbee for the burglary of a men's furnishing store in Burlingame. The four men were sentenced to Folsom penitentary, but asked for an appeal. The other members of the party later withdrew their appeal and returned to the penitentary, but Allen was still confined to the jail here awaiting the action of the Appelate court.

Allen had been confined to a cell since the time of his trial, but upon the advice of physicians, who stated that he was suffering from tuberculosis, and needed more room for exercise, he was confined in a room in the jail which had been used as a dining room. It was from here that he escaped. A

ACTION TAKEN TO SECURE COAST RIGHTS OF WAY

The board of supervisors last Monday again took under consideration the proposal of securing the bed of the abandoned Ocean Shore Railway and using it as the bed of a new highway to connect the coastside of the county with San Francisco and avoid the long hard grades which now intervene. This is a matter which was considered before the board several years ago, but the first definite action in the matter was taken last Monday when by a unanimous vote of the supervisors, $500 was appropriated for the purpose of locating the owners of the rights of way.

The route has been abandoned by the railway and it is generally conceded that the rights of way have reverted to the original owners. It is the intention of that supervisors to locate these owners and secure from them rights of way. Many of the owners have already given rights of way for this road.

C. OF C. DIRECTORS SEEK PROPERTY ANNEXATION

That another solution of the Broadway proposition may be found in the annexation of the property east of town which would be directly benefited by the extension, is the opinion of President E. B. Hinman of the Chamber of Commerce and of the board of directors of that organiaztion. The board of directors met Wednesday evening to discuss the proposition and means of furthering this needed improvement.

At this time it was suggested that the owners of the property outside of the town which would be served by this improvement be asked to join with the town and be included in an assessment district. A committee consisting of Asa Hull, Gilman Merrill, Henry Witte and assisted by City Attorney Mansfield was appointed to interview the property owners on the proposition.

The following resolution was adopted by the board of directors and issued as a statment of the Chamber of Commerce:

"The Chamber of Commerce desires to thank the voters who supported the proposition to open Broadway. While the project failed by a few votes we are convinced that there is no question as to the desirability of this improvement, and the chamber will contine their efforts to find some solution that will be approved by the voters of the community."

Old Friends Are United

Friendships made at sea in the old sailing ship days were of long duration, and friends are remembered even when wide oceans or wider spans of time intervene. So it proved with John F. Ford, pioneer resident of this city and former seal hunter. The story was told this week how a piece concerning the local man and his seal hunting exploits appeared in the San Francisco Call reunited friends who have not met in the past thirty years.

The story had its beginning away back in the early 90's, when Ford was hunting seals in the Japan seas with the schooner Theresa. During a storm a small boat was sighted from the schooner. They rowed out to investigate and found a boat half submerged to which two men were clinging.

The men told a woeful tale of hunger and privation. They with one other had left the schooner Bonanza, but had become driven by the wind away from their ship and had been several days afloat without provisions. Their companion had been washed overboard and was killed by a shark. One of these men was George D. Baker.

The men joined the ship Theresa and came back to California. In the following year, by a strange twist of fate Baker again became lost within a short distance of the same latitude, and after another time of great peril, was again rescued by a boat in which John Ford was hunting. Both men had returned in the same ships from which they were hunting the year before, and almost the identical circumstances were repeated.

Between Baker and Ford a strong friendship sprang up on these two occasions but although neither was forgotten by the other, fate separated them and for the many years since those eventful days neither knew where the other had gone. Last week, through the piece appearing in the Call the two friends were again united, and one of the happiest days of their lives were spent in recalling the events of by-gone days. This is the second old friendship which has been revived for Mr. Ford by this article as last week he found another friend, Chas. Willoughby, now of San Carlos, whom he had not seen since the days of seal hunting.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY REWARDS OFFICER DOUGLAS

Officer Sylvester Douglass of the local police department received a check for $100 from the Standard Oil Company this week as a reward for having frustrated a robbery of the company's station at the corner of the highway and Claremenot street on April 6th. Douglass shot and killed Melvin McCray, also known as McCoy, a bandit who has been identified as being the perpretrator of a large number of oil station robberies in this county.

JOHN GILL HONORED BY HI-Y CLUB

A surprise was pulled off last Monday evening at the regular meeting of the Hi-Y Club in honor of the birthday of John Gill, their leader.

A song especially prepared for the occasion was sung by the Hi-Y members and a large birthday cake, brilliant with candles was presented. Several yells were also given in his honor. Mrs. Gill and the members of Mr. Gill's staff were guests of honor.

The whole affair was a complete surprise to Mr. Gill.

S. B. Dole of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company gave the talk of the evening on "Opportunities for Young Men in the Line of Electrical Engineering.

BROADWAY BONDS ARE DEFEATED AT POLLS

Active interest was shown in the election last Monday and a large vote was polled. Interest in the election centered chiefly in the proposal for the extension of Broadway, which eclipsed even the contest in the trustee fight. It was in this issue that the rgeatest surprise of the election was developed. A count of the votes showed that the measure had carried by a big majority in every precinct and had received a vote of 0137 in favor as against 497 opposed, more than the required two thirds majority. It was found, however, that a number of voters had not expressed any preference in the matter, and that in order to have received a two thirds vote of the entire poll it would nave had to receive 1068 votes, it was therefore defeated.

It is the general opinion however that as such a large majority of the voters favor the proposition, that the board will extend the street by means of an assesment district.

In the trustee election, Z. T. Thorning, candidate for the short term, ran without opposiion and was unanimously elected. Of the three candidates for the long term, Henry Beeger, incumbent, was high man, and was followed by Ed Dearborn. Mark Ryan, the other incumbent, was defeated.

Beeger was elected at this time to his second term on the Board, and during the past two years, has served as chairman of the board of trustees. His father, the late Henry Beeger, Sr., was for several terms a member of the board of trustees and his brother, Carl Beeger, has also served as a member of the board.

Dearborn was for many years superintendent of streets in Redwood City. He is an old time resident of this city and is now in the contracting business here.

The defeated candidate, Mark Ryan, leaves the board with a record of good service for the city. He has for many years been chief of the fire department, and has created a department second to none in the state.

The vote for he various trustees was as follows: Thorning, 1151; Beeger 1063; Dearborn 922; Ryan 784. By precincts the vote was as follows:

No. 1—Drew Building
Total vote cast 342
City Hall—Yes, 191; No, 114.
Broadway—Yes, 239; No. 92.
Trustees—Beeger, 231; Dearborn, 194; Ryan, 177; Thorning, 242.

No. 2—Elkerenkotter Home
Total vote cast 294
City HallMYes, 139; No. 123.
Broadway—Yes, 198; No, 85.
Trustees—Beeger, 190; Dearborn, 175; Ryan, 129; Thorning, 182.

No. 3—Bray's House
Total vote cast 395
City Hall,—Yes, 198; No, 164.
Broadway—Yes, 215; No, 149.
Trustees—Beeger, 209; Dearborn 274; Ryan, 153; Thorning, 265.

No. 4—Woman's Club House
Total vote cast 572
City Hall—Yes, 356; No, 187.
Broadway—Yes, 3[illegible] No 171.
Trustees—Beeger, 433; Dearborn, 279; Ryan, 325; Thorning, 462.

The bonds for the enlargement of the city hall were badly defeated, receiving only 884 votes of a necessary 1068. There were 588 votes cast against the propostion.

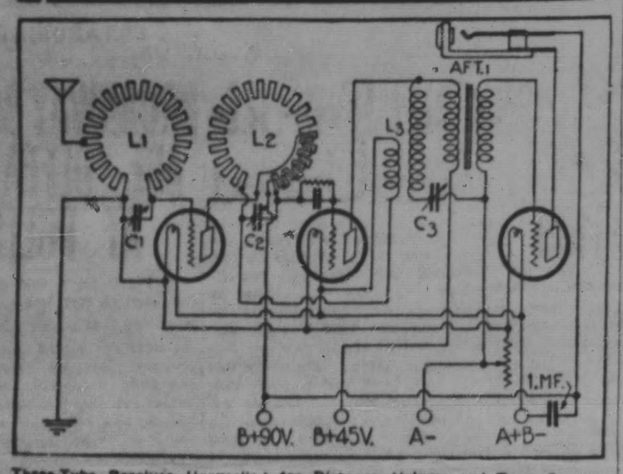
RADIO



Three-Tube Receiver Unexcelled for Distance, Volume and Tone. Square Wound Toroidal Coils Give the Circuit Selectivity.

Regeneration is one of the most wonderful things of radio, without which the entire broadcasting situation would not have reached its present day perfection. But, the regenerative receiver, as such, has almost become extinct because of its radiating qualities which spoil general reception for miles around, and because it is not selective enough to tune through a number of nearby broadcasting stations.

Regeneration is a great help to any radio set. When used in a sharp tuning receiver it will add sufficient volume to equal a nonregenerative set, using a greater number of tubes. The circuit shown here was devised by engineers of the All-American radio corporation to produce a three-tube set, employing regeneration and radio frequency amplification combined. The radio frequency makes it a distance getter and prevents radiation, and the regeneration produces the volume and sensitiveness required to operate satisfactorily under 1926 conditions.

Make Sharper Tuning Set.

Toroidal coils make this combination possible, by eliminating interstage coupling. The magnetic field of the transformers is confined in the coils. The toroid coils also prevent the pick-up of local stations by the coils themselves and make a much sharper tuning set. The new All-American shielded straight line frequency condensers are recommended to prevent crowding of the stations on the lower waves.

Only one stage of audio frequency is provided, and if this be constructed with one of the laboratory model lyric transformers, reproduction of music and speech will be as clear and undistorted as on a one tube set.

The regenerative feature is controlled by a small variable condenser of approximately .00015 mfd. that permits the tubes to be brought gradually up to the point of oscillation, or "hot spot," where reception is best.

The Parts Needed.

Few parts are needed, and the set can be assembled with a 7 by 18 or 21-inch panel and cabinet, without crowding. Two controls, an ideal system of tuning a radio set, are used. To construct the receiver you will need the following list of parts:

One toroid coupler, type T1 (L1).
One toroid coil, type T2 (L2).
One universal coupler, type R 140 (L3).
Two straight line frequency condensers, type C35 (C1 and 2).
One variable condenser, approximately .00015 mfd. capacity (C3).
One audio transformer, type R12 (AFT 1).
One large fixed condenser, 0.5 to 1.0 mfd.
Three sockets.
One grid leak.
One .00025 mfd. grid condenser.
One 6 ohm rheostat.
Binding posts, wire, screws, etc.

The UV199 or C299 type of tubes may be used if the rheostat is 10 to 15 ohms. One rheostat controls the three tubes and it is not advantageous to provide a separate rheostat for each tube. The 45-volt "B" battery binding post is for the detector tube, which should not be of the regular UV200 or C300 type, unless the voltage is lowered to 22½ volts.

FOREFATHERS OF RADIO

By GEORGE LEWIS
of The Crosley Radio Corporation.

No one had succeeded in demonstrating how Hertz' discoveries could be made the basis of a practical system. The waves created by Hertz' coni devoted his attention to the problem. The waves created by Hertz's crude apparatus could only be detected at short distances from the apparatus. It was necessary that two things be done before Hertz' methods could be adapted to practical wireless telegraphy: First, it was essential to devise some more powerful means of propagating the waves, and, second, a better detecting device than the simple wire loop and spark gap that he had used had to be worked out. Marconi solved both of these problems.

Very early in his experiments, Marconi made the discovery that if one electrical terminal of the transmitting or receiving apparatus were connected to the earth and the other end connected to a metal plate or wire suspended high in the air, the range over which transmission and reception could be accomplished would be multiplied many times. Marconi's earth connection is known today as the "ground," and his suspended wire or plate is what we know as an "aerial" or "antenna."

In the line of detecting devices he improved an instrument first thought of by Branly, and known as the "coherer." This instrument is a relay, enabling the feeble vibrating electric current set up in the receiving circuit by the radio waves to release current from a local battery.

By means of these improvements, Marconi was able to conduct many successful demonstrations of practical wireless telegraphy in England. In 1898, permanent stations were established for communication between Alum bay and Bournemouth, England, a distance of 14½ miles. A year later communication was maintained between England and France.

FOR THE NOTE BOOK

Put a fresh grid leak in the set about once a year.

The best solder is made of equal parts of tin and lead.

Fading is much less troublesome in daylight than at night.

Antenna insulators should be cleaned every six months.

Use a "C" battery to reduce the "B" battery consumption.

Hydrometers are not used with nickel-iron storage batteries.

Static noises are worst in a set on the approach of a storm area.

The ground is one of the most important portions of the radio circuit.

Crystal detectors operate as long as the detector is in good condition.

Excessive resin from solder can be removed with alcohol and a soft cloth.

Howling of a set may be due to filament too high, over-regeneration, improper wiring, or instruments crowded.

A condenser connected in series with an aerial will reduce the wave length of the aerial. One connected in parallel will raise the wave length.

Use Caution in Making Adjustments on Radio

The man who lifts the lid of his radio cabinet and proceeds to tighten a loose nut or binding post without first disconnecting the "B" batteries is inviting disaster to his valuable tubes.

A slip of the pliers, one wire pressed against another, something dropped inside, may mean a short circuit that will burn the tubes out instantly. Remember that your "B" batteries have almost as high a voltage as the house current and, even though not able to deliver as much current, they have many times the power required to send your tubes to the graveyard.

In disconnecting them it is best to take the three wires off the "B" batteries rather than off the set, as loose wires, still attached to the "B" batteries, may go astray while you're not looking and touch other wires, either burning out the tubes or short-circuiting the "B" batteries themselves. To avoid short-circuiting the "A" battery circuit, it is also wise to take off at least one wire from the storage or dry cell "A" battery. It is possible to burn out a rheostat, burn up connecting wires, and even burn one's fingers by such a short circuit.

Use care in handling the tubes, for if you jar or drop one of them it may loosen the glass, loosen the elements and spoil the operation of the set. This is particularly true of a neutrodyne, which may no longer be neutralized if the tube is internally damaged.

Poor Arrester Does Harm

A fruitful source of leakage on any good antenna is in the lightning arrester. A poor type of arrester does more harm than good. Only such types should be used as can be opened and gaps cleaned frequently, especially after a heavy electrical storm.

Hear as They Fly

That airplanes are the ears as well as eyes of the navy scouting fleet was demonstrated by the aircraft squadrons at Guantanamo, which transmitted and received messages within a range of 200 miles.

FIT "SPECTACLES" TO BLIND HOLES

Many Clubs Have One or More of Them.

Methods of "fitting spectacles" to blind holes on golf links were discussed by Thomas J. Moreau, a golf architect. While such holes, whose greens are invisible from the tee, are not so popular as they used to be, many clubs have one or more and do not care to rebuild them. Blind greens have been condemned by many because the player cannot see what he is shooting at, but more particularly because the ball cannot be kept in sight and the shooter is never sure when the green is clear of players.

Schemes for giving sight to blind holes will not overcome the first objection, but will cure the others. Larger clubs are remaking such holes, but other alleviations are possible.

The most picturesque plan has been made use of by the Victoria Country club in the capital of British Columbia. The thirteenth hole of this links, which lies partly among rugged rocks on the seashore, has its tee on some crags. The green is cut off from view by a ridge of granite and one day a golfer let fly a tee shot on this 200-yard hole without ascertaining whether the players ahead had holed out. The ball hit a man. Then players became wary and waited longer than necessary to tee off.

Finally a member presented a large schoolhouse bell, handsomely embossed, and had it installed at the edge of the green. When players have finished putting they sound this tocsin as they start for the fourteenth tee and those following know that the way is clear.

Another scheme is employed by the Moosejaw Country club in the broken prairie country of Saskatchewan. The club built a lookout platform at the tee of a blind hole and the players may send a caddy up the winding stairs of this tower to see that the way is open and to watch the flight and roll of the balls.

More romantic and just as effective, and requiring less effort, is the apparatus used by the Calgary Country club in Alberta. This is really a pair of spectacles, for the members have erected a large periscope at the left of the tee. The player may look into the bottom mirror and see that the green is vacant. Then he may place his caddy or opponent at the glass to watch the flight and final resting place of his ball.

The shaft of the periscope is some fifteen feet high, but as it is built of plain boards lined with tar paper, the cost is low. The arrangement of mirrors places the green in plain view although it nestles in a deep valley beyond a high ridge.

Record for Lackie

Miss Ethel Lackie, Illinois A. C., exceeded by two-fifths of a second the world's record for the 50-yard free style swimming in an exhibition match at Philadelphia. The exhibition marked the dedication and formal opening of the Penn A. C. pool. Her time was 27 seconds flat.

Alumni to Be Taxed $5 at Big Three Grid Games

Five dollars hereafter will be the price to alumni for single tickets to football games played by the "Big Three," Yale, Harvard and Princeton —among themselves, it was announced at Yale for itself and sister universities. This is an increase from $3 a ticket to alumni, while by the agreement single ticket to "members of the university community" shall be $2, or $1 less than heretofore.

Increase in revenue sought by the change in prices will be applied "solely in maintenance and development of general athletic facilities and not to increase budgets of intercollegiate athletic teams."

Ball Clubs Top-Heavy With Pitchers in 1925

A tabulation of the rosters of the American league last season shows that of 264 players who appeared in the box scores, 102 of them were pitchers. Most of the clubs had top-heavy hurling staffs. The Chicago White Sox used 15 pitchers during the season. Washington also had 15 pitchers. Connie Mack, of the Athletics, used only 12 men in the box, the smallest number of any club in the organization. Some men listed as pitchers had very little to do. The St. Louis Browns carried Chester Falk all season, and he pitched in only 25 innings. Manager Sisler also hung oh to Stauffer and used him in but 30 innings.

Canadian Sculler Deserts

Chester Turner, single scull champion of Canada, has deserted the Argonaut club of Toronto, Canada, it is announced in Canadian newspapers. He will soon join the Pennsylvania Athletic club of Philadelphia. Canada was looking to Turner as a point winner in the 1928 Olympics and expresses regret that he should go to the United States. Turner's only comment was that he left Toronto only after much and very careful consideration of his future prospects.

Norwegian Track Star Tries Grid

Charlie Hoff, world's champion pole vaulter and Norway's blue ribbon athlete, who has been training on the Georgetown university campus, went out with the football squad for his first taste of the great American college game. Charlie is the good-looking "freshman" in the middle of the bottom of the pile.

Battling Nelson Was Champion Only Year

Battling Nelson, one of the greatest lightweights, only held the championship a little over a year.

Nelson came into the honors July 4, 1908, beating Joe Gans, the crownwearer, in seventeen sessions. It was their second meeting, Gans having won on a foul the first time. That bout went forty-two rounds.

Ad Wolgast usurped Nelson's title in 1910. The battle was staged on Washington's birthday. Wolgast made the great Dane toss up the sponge in the fortieth round. Nelson was virtually out on his feet. But protested the stopping of the massacre.

PLAN BIG CORN CROP FOR 1926

Farmers Reduce Acreage but Slightly —Drop in Spring Wheat.

Washington.—Despite the corn surplus produced last year the farmers of the country apparently are preparing to plant almost as large an acreage to corn in 1926 as they harvested in 1925.

Department of Agriculture figures, based on a census recently conducted, disclose a decrease of only one-tenth of 1 per cent in the intended planting this spring as compared to the harvested acreage of last fall. Spring wheat acreage shows a decline of 1.8 per cent and oats and barley increases of 4.6 per cent and 5.7 per cent, respectively.

As a result of the findings of its experts, the Agriculture department declares that with average yields there seems "little chance for change in the corn situation," but at the same time it warns farmers not to increase their live stock without considering the probable effect on the market.

Department Gives Warning.

A jump of 19.6 per cent in intended plantings of sweet potatoes leads the department to warn against a crop of that commodity too large to market at satisfactory prices.

The intended acreage of white potatoes shows an increase of 4.3 per cent over the acreage harvested in 1925; flax, an increase of four-tenths of 1 per cent; grain sorghum, a decrease of 1.7 per cent; tobacco, a decrease of 8 per cent; rice, an increase of 1.4 per cent, and tame hay, an increase of seven-tenths of 1 per cent.

"The intended acreage of corn, with average yields, would allow little chance for change in the corn situation," says the department's statement. "Increases in live stock should not be made without considering the probable effect on the market.

Sees Wheat Most Profitable.

"With average yields, hard spring wheat would probably be a more profitable cash crop to grow than any other small grain in the principal hard spring wheat region, even with a slight increase in acreage.

"An oat crop equal to that of last year would probably result in continued unsatisfactory conditions in the market. A barley crop as large as intended would probably allow no improvement in the market unless a short European crop should increase export demand.

"While the outlook for flax is not quite so favorable as for wheat, farmers operating where flax ordinarily supplements wheat on low-priced land will probably find no alternative more desirable than flax.

"The slight increase in potato acreage for the country as a whole seems reasonably safe, but there are marked differences in plans in different sections and overproduction should be guarded against in some localities, particularly in the West. It is highly improbable that an increased crop of sweet potatoes as large as intentions indicate could be marketed at satisfactory prices.

Tobacco Production Reduced.

"Increases in acreage of certain types of tobacco such as burley and Maryland export types, with average yields may result in excessive supplies. Decreases are indicated by growers of cigar types and dark types which would bring the total production of all tobacco slightly below 1925.

"The outlook for 1926 indicates that the slight changes contemplated by farmers in acreage are in accord with the prospect that there is little likelihood of a material increase in demand for farm products in either the domestic or foreign markets."

Commenting on the feed crops situation in the North Central states, the department says live stock numbers in those states have decreased each year since 1923, but no corresponding decrease in crop acreage has taken place or is indicated for this year, which makes the adjustment between grain and live stock production a serious problem in this region.

Hogs to Slightly Increase.

"Present indications are that the supply of live stock in this region will be no larger next year than it is this," the department continues, "and that the demand for feed grains to feed will be no greater. Hog numbers may be expected to increase somewhat this year because of the present favorable feeding situation, but in view of the reduction in horses and cattle it is doubtful if the increase in the former will more than offset the decrease in the latter. The serious situation facing the farmers of this region is that the potential production of feeds and of live stock to consume them under the present conditions of production is too large for all the production to find a remunerative market.

"The principal problem confronting each farmer in this region is to strive for a good balance between his live stock and feed crops, bearing in mind that any large increase in live stock numbers for the country as a whole would probably result in lower prices.

Use of Hay, Pasture Urged.

"A general movement toward a greater dependence on pasture and hay as feed for live stock would tend to lower the expense of the farmers and at the same time bring about a better balance between feed production and feed requirements.

"The carry-over of the 1925 corn crop next fall undoubtedly will be above the five-year average, especially in the corn-belt states. While commercial uses for corn may be slightly larger than last year, the large Argentine crop being harvested this year will tend to reduce foreign demand for American corn. Since information available does not indicate that feeding requirements will be much, if any, greater next season than this, if the intended acreage is planted and the average yield obtained, no great change from the present corn situation is expected. The position of the farmer who depends on the sale of corn for any considerable part of his cash income would probably not be greatly improved during the 1926 crop year unless yields generally were much less than usual. If corn and hogs are to be on a satisfactory basis in the North Central states the production of corn must be adjusted to that supply of hogs which will maintain a satisfactory market."

Ship 500,000,000 Pounds of Explosive; No Mishap

Washington.—Without death or injury to a single person, the American Railway association announces American and Canadian railroads during 1925 handled more than 500,000,000 pounds of commercial explosives — approximately 375,000 carloads.

Explosion of toy torpedoes, the association's bureau of explosives said, were responsible for 24 of 26 accidents in transporting fireworks, none of which, however, proved fatal or injurious.

Only 13 were killed and 57 injured, the bureau said, in the railroad handling millions of pounds of acids, inflammable liquids, conpressed gasses, poisonous liquids and similar articles. Ten of these deaths and 15 of the injuries were due to explosions of gasoline, and the bureau added, "one-half the deaths and more than one-half of the injuries due to such accidents were the direct consequence of trespassers entering empty tank cars."

Library Has Gain of 50 Per Cent in Year

Jerusalem.—The Jewish National library of the Hebrew university, designed to house the world's greatest collection of Hebrew books and manuscripts, now contains 125,683 volumes, 40,890 of which were secured during the last year, says a report of Dr. Hugo Bergmann, chief librarian.

Included in the rare and ancient books added to the library was the first Hebrew book published in America, "The Grammar of the Hebrew Tongue," printed in Boston in 1735 and dedicated to Harvard university.

Others were from the Fifteenth and Sixteenth century, published in the golden days of Jewish literature and scholarship in Spain, Italy, Turkey, Germany and other centers. The library is supported by the Palestine Foundation fund and the Hebrew university fund, which draw their chief support from American Jews.

The accident occurred on the target range of the Sixty-fifth infantry. A rifle which was being cleaned by a soldier was accidentally discharged. The bullet wounded Private Rodriguez in the abdomen, then struck Private J. Delgado on the right knee, was deflected from a rifle leaning against a scorer's board and struck Private M. Emiliano in the neck, then struck in turn Capt. John T. Dibrell and Lieut. John Shaw and finally lodged in the hip of Private A. Roque.

United States District Attorney George J. Hatfield of San Francisco, recently secured an important ruling from the United States District court. The court held that protection of the Fourth Amendment against searches without a search warrant did not extend to farms; and that where prohibition agents while on farms apprehend the fumes of distillation coming from a house in which they can observe the occupants moving around they can place the occupants under arrest and make a search of the house under the control of the occupants on the theory that they are making an arrest for a felony committed within their presence. This decision will greatly aid prohibition agents in apprehending operators of illegal stills who have heretofore sought to throw a cloak of protection around their operations by operating their stills in dwelling houses on isolated farms.

People may brag as they will about the home-grown American shamrocks but J. H. Collins, of Manteca, San Joaquin county, claims to have backed the Irish national flower off the map in the discovery in his garden of a beautiful pink rose, in the center of which were two vivid green buds. He says it is the real "wild Irish rose" and he intends to try propigating the bush that produced the novelty for use at future year St. Patrick day's celebrations.

In California, the land of romance, there are few cities which have a more interesting and entertaining history than has Hanford, in the center of the vast San Joaquin valley. The pretty little city, couty seat of Kings county, is on a site ranged over half a century ago by bands of elk and antelope, and which is today surrounded by highly cultivated raisin vineyards, fruit orchards and vast acreage of dairy farms.

While no definite plans have yet been formulated, it is expected Yosemite's Diamond Jubilee Year will be celebrated with a fitting pageant arranged so as to co-ordinate with the celebration of the opening of the new Yosemite all-year highway up the Merced River Canyon and the completion of the first fifteen miles of paved road in Yosemite valley, both expected to be finished about August 1.

Auto stage service between Manteca and Oakland and Manteca and Sacramento is to be considerably increased, according to announcement made by the California Transit company. Several new stages are to be added to the service to care for the summer travel, and there will be extra cars from here to Oakland and to Stockton. The time table has been changed completely.

Tree planting in Dinuba has taken a decided spurt with the announcement by the Dinuba American Legion post of free trees and free planting in front of any property where the owner or tenant would agree to take care of the planted tree. The Legion post is providing any variety of tree free of charge. The movement has stimulated tree planting interest materially.

Mining with a road scraper is California's latest style of mineral production, introduced on a very small scale, to be sure, by Walter S. Hartwick, in charge of street improvement work at Jackson, Amador county. Cutting a new street in the "Skunk Hollow" section Hartwick is reported to have unearthed gold quarts valued at $25.

"California now has 14 per cent of all the crippled men and mentally deficient relics of the world war, and 17 per cent of all the tubercular patients within its borders for treatment and hospital care," stated Allen Bixby of Pasadena, commander of the Department of California for the American Legion.

A combination of a number of the largest rice growers in the United States, whereby immense interests will be joined for the production of rice in Colusa county, was revealed recently when articles of incorporation for a company known as Houx Brothers, Inc., were filed with Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan.

Vineyardists of the Florin section are urged by the farm adviser of Sacramento county and experts of the state department of agriculture to spray their vines immediately as a means of eliminating the thrips which have been found in vast quantities in practically every vineyard of the section.

Only four votes were cast against the proposed bond issue for $25,000 for the construction of a new grammar school building at Newcastle, Placer county.

ANCIENT VIKING KINGS WERE CREMATED IN KILNS

Recent Excavations in Swedish Mounds Shed Light on Unique Funeral Services.

Upsala, Sweden.—Proof that the Viking kings of Sweden were cremated inside of firmly constructed kilns and not on top of ordinary pyres has been unearthed here by Prof. Sune Lindquist during his excavations in one of the famous funeral mounds located near this university city known as the Swedish "Cradle of Culture." Long before Stockholm became the capital, Upsala was the seat of the Swedish kings and when they died their bodies were solemnly burned as a special homage.

Through observation of the materials uncovered inside a hitherto unopened mound, the archeologist has come to the conclusion that for a king's funeral some 1,500 years ago an elaborate and solid structure of wood was erected on the traditional site and inside this building the royal remnants and certain weapons and ornaments were placed to accompany him on the journey to Valhalla.

The successive layers of gravel, burnt clay and ashes prove that the funeral kiln was constructed on a pile of loose stones which admitted air from below, and then logs were fitted together to form a small dome with an opening at the top. Then after the king's body had been placed inside, the walls were coated with a thick layer of clay, making them air-tight. When therefore a torch was applied at the base, a strong draft helped to start the conflagration that consumed both logs and contents.

After the combustion of the inner frame the clay coating also collapsed and the entire remains were then covered up with sand and gravel. In this way the mounds grew in height with each royal funeral and today some of them are as high as 30 feet.

This interpretation of the cremation method which has its counterpart in certain Roman customs, is strikingly confirmed both by passages in the Icelandic sagas and Anglo-Saxon epic about Beowulf. One of the incidents in the Icelandic literature for instance tells of a Swedish king named Frey, who had ruled his people in peace for many years and when he died, he was secretly put inside of a pyre, built with a door and three openings and fearing failure of crops and war, as soon as his spirit departed for Valhalla, his subjects kept him there for three years before they applied the torch.

2,000 Vets Outside U. S. Receive Compensation

Washington.—Two thousand native veterans of Uncle Sam's dependencies or their beneficiaries are receiving from the veterans' bureau compensation due them for services in the World war.

There are in the possessions 2,080 persons receiving either death or disability compensations and 651 either death or disability insurance.

The Philippines leads the list of dependencies with 157 disability and 387 death cases for which the injured or their dependents are now receiving compensation. The Canal Zone is last with only four disability cases.

Porto Rico has 330 disability and 323 death cases being cared for; Hawaii 73 disability and 35 death cases, and Virgin islands 2 disability and 4 death cases.

Porto Rico, with 205, has the highest number receiving insurance money. The Philippines are second with 185, Hawaii has 84 and Guam and Panama each have 8.

Peary's Flags at Pole

Peary planted five flags at the North pole in 1909. They were: A silk American flag, given him by Mrs. Peary 15 years before; the colors of Delta Kappa Epsilon, his fraternity; the "World's Ensign of Liberty," with red, white and blue in a field of white; the Navy league flag, and the Red Cross flag.

Sophisticated Kid

We often hear of children being sheltered from the wickedness of the world. They are not. The little wretches must accept the common fare and hear of plenty of wickedness, among themselves and in their homes. What a lot of wickedness I knew about before I was ten years old!—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Destructive Tourists

Tourists are responsible for the destruction of many of our young trees, says a state forester. "Automobilists," he says, "dig up young conifers for transplanting and usually carry them with roots exposed for great distances, expecting them to take root and grow. Most of them die. The practice should stop."

Knew Her Mother

The little daughter of an artist was playing on the porch of her home when a man selling colored postcards spoke to her. "Do you think your mother would like some of these?" he asked, showing her the cards. "No, I am sure she would not," was the decisive reply. "My father makes them."

Congress

No. 1

I went to Washington the other day. I visited "The House of Representatives," they were in session. What I mean by being in session, the tax bill was up for debate and they were arguing on "Better Golf courses for the medium salaried man." I suppose if the World Court bill had been up, they would have been talking on "Shall America park oblong or parallel."

Well, then I went over to the Senate. They had adjourned, so I felt that America was not having such a bad day at that. We were only 50 percent inefficient THAT DAY.

You know we all joke and kid about Congress, but we can't improve on them. No matter who we elect, he is just as bad as the one he replaced. So with all their faults we love 'em. They are as good as the people who vote to put them there, and they are 10 times better than the ones who don't vote at all. They are like "Bull" Durham, they are not perfect, but they are the best in their line.

LUTHER BURBANK

LUTHER BURBANK is gone, and with his passthere has gone from this plane one of the outstanding men of our age. Burbank, spending his life that humanity might be better off that he has lived; working that the small worthless fruit of a wild plant might be among our finest fruits, and the little wayside flower might vie with the orchids of the hot house, found, as nearly all great men have found that humanity is prone to be a thankless lot.

The last days of the old man, days which should have been spent in peace and quiet among the flowers he loved so well, were made turbulent by storms of abuse from a mob over which his intellect towered like a giant among pigmies. It is unfortunate that in a country where a man's opinion is supposed to be his own, and where freedom of thought is considered every man's prized possession that because a man prominent in a certain line of work expresses opinions different than those accepted by the common run, that he should be made the object of all manner of attack.

Yet in this Luther Burbank differs not a whit from any other great man who has differed from the mob. If Galileo had agreed that the world was flat he would not have spent his old age in prison; if Socrates had conformed his opinions to what was popular in his days he would not have drank the hemlock. Nor would Galileo nor Socrates have been known to us today. Fame, it seems is won after death by suffering persecution during life.

Today Luther Burbank is recognized as one of the greatest men of our generation. A few days ago every mail contained hundreds of vehement attacks upon the old man, attacks, which his physicians say, shortened h's life. The works of Luther Burbank will live as long as men subsist on the fruits of the earth, and even now his enemies are forgotten. It is too bad that this peace could not have come to comfort his old age, and make the final days of the great benefactor upon this earth, the happy ones he deserved.

A VICTORIOUS DEFEAT

THE results of an election are sometimes surprising, but are seldom as anomalous as that by which the Broadway proposition met defeat at last Monday's election. This important measure received a vote of 1037 as compared to a vote of 497 against it—43 more than a two thirds majority which was necessary for its passage. Yet the measure was defeated. The law, it would appear, requires a majority of two thirds of all the votes cast, and enough of the voters did not signify their attitude one way of the other that the issue did not receive two thirds of the entire vote cast, although it received more than two thirds of all the votes upon this proposition.

Whether the ballots of voters who did not vote either way on the Broadway issue can be counted as having been cast as far as this issue is concerned is a point for legal authorities to thresh out, but whether or not this seeming paradox of an issue being beaten although it receives the necessary majority of the votes will result in nullifying the present plans for Broadway, we believe that the proposition should be put over anyway.

The vote last Monday showed that by far the greater proportion of the people of Redwood City are in favor of the improvement. It is a measure which seriously affects the future of Redwood City. With public sentiment so strongly in favor of this important improvement, the trustees would be amply justified in extending the street through an assessment district. If public sentiment were against the proposition, we would still think it the duty of the board of trustees to make an improvement so essential to the proper development of the town. Where the public is so overwhelmingly in favor of the issue, we believe that they can out of fairness to the big majority of the citizens, do nothing else.

Broadway must be put through. We believe that legal technicalities which nullify the will of two thirds of the voters are in violation of the principles of popular sovereignty. The will of the majority should be the deciding factor in a measure of this kind. We hope that the board of trustees will give due consideration to the expressed opinion of two thirds of their constituents and do that which the law amply empowers them to do —make this necessary improvement by the creation of an assessment district.

PESCADERO MOURNS PASSING OF YOUTH

Word was received here Monday afternoon of the death of Louis J. McCormick at the Community Hospital at Bereford, where he was oporated on last Tuesday. It has cast a gloom over the town, as he was one of the best known and loved in the entire community. On the 7th of April he was 18 years old, having been born and raised here, attended the Pescadero grammar school and was a junior in the high school. He was captain of the 1925-1925 soccer team. He was editor of the Carnelian, the high school paper, and also a member of Troop No. 120, Boy Scouts of America. His funeral was held from St. Anthony church, Thursday. Burial was in the local Catholic cemetery His pallbearers were Graham McCormick, Clarence Frey, Robley Pinkham, Melvin Mesquite, Alfred Luis and Edwin Roderguise, his school pals. The girls of the high school sang the hymns. He leaves to mourn his loss his mother, Mrs. Theresa McCormick and his father, Arthur McCormick, and the following brothers and sisters: Henry, Adelia, Mary, Jane and Evelyn McCormick, besides his hosts of friends. The floral offerings were beautiful.

May the Pescadero sun shine brightly,
May the Pescadero rain fall lightly.
On the grave where sleeps our captain dear.

NEW HARDWARE STORE OPENS

E. W. Magruder, the enterprising real estate operator and merchant, on Tuesday moved into his new office on the highway, near Brewster street. This building is attractive and the very last word in office comfort and completeness. He will maintain his present office in the Stafford building. The store in the same building is being fitted up as a hardware store and just as soon as the carpenters are through their work, they will be switched to a building about to be started on the highway opposite the Goertzhain nurseries. Mr. Magruder is to erect a large store there, 100 feet long by 30 feet wide. It is to be the wholesale department for building materials of all kinds, while the store in the Stafford building will be the retail store.

Mr. Magruder's business is expanding so rapidly in the sale of building material that he was compelled to lease a portion of the big warehouse owned by the Erickson Navigation Company at the foot of Main street. He will hold this until he completes a prospective new and large warehouse on the block of land recently purchased near the Hess gravel bins, close to the highway. This mammoth structure will house all his material. This week Mr. Magruder purchased a strip of land near the Ryan Drug store close to Five Points, 112x46 feet, running from the highway to Main street. He intends to erect stores fronting on both streets that will be for rent.

"San Francisco Water," a monthly publication sisued by the Spring Valley Water Company and edited by Edward F. O'Day, the brilliant young writer, devotes a big portion of the April edition to an article in memory of the late William B. Lawrence, superintendent of the water division of the Spring Valley Water Company for many years. Mr. Lawrence passed away last November. The article gives a complete history of the Lawrence family. It is interesting, well written and speaks in glowing terms of the ability and work of the deceased.

FOOD WASTE TOTALS STAGGERING SUM

As the expresson goes, it is the little things that count. Let's take the amount of damage done by rust, for example. It is impossible, of course, for anyone to determine accurately our national rust. bill. But at a conservative estimate, in the United States something like three hundred million dollars worth of property is annually destroyed by rust.

Mrs. Oscar Tolle of Ben Lomand who has been visiting her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Steele, returned home Monday.

GRANTED FINAL DECREE

Mary A. Stella was granted a final decree of divorce from Palo Stella Monday in the court of Superior Judge George H. Buck. Their four children, Dominica, Rose, Josephine and Jennie, were given to the defendant's custody.

And the waste could easily be prevented if everyone would exercise a little care and attention.

Another form of waste, which annually reaches a staggering figure is the amount of foodstuffs thrown away on account of spoiling. The average housewife would be astounded, says a noted household economist, if the amount of food thus wasted were figured out in dollars and cents, and the total sum brought to her attention. But the waste goes on slowly, a little a a time, without her realizing it.

Yet this waste can be prevented very easily and at an extremely low cost through the use of ice. In the average family, the ice required to keep perishable foods fresh and wholesome amounts to less than one per cent of the tota. cost of living—or to quote the exact figure, seventy-four ten thousandths. And the small fraction of the household buget spent to keep a refrigerator well iced will be repaid hundreds of times over in the amount of food it will save.

There is no safe substitute for ICE

You know that ice will give you safe, efficient, continuous refrigeration. There are no "ifs" or "buts". Ice is absolutely dependable. It is economical. For Safety, Dependability and Economy, no other form of refrigeration can compare with ICE.

Superintendent of Banks Accused of Falsehood

The charge that J. F. Johnson, State Superintendent of Banks was guilty of giving false testimony, was made by Garret W. McEnerney, attorney for the Bank of Italy, in its proceedings before the Supreme Court to secure permission to establish two branch offices in Los Angeles.

Coupled with this charge are the accusations that Johnson has directly violated the State Bank Act and has attempted to secure a monopoly of banking in Los Angeles for five favored institutions of that city.

McEnerney said that the Bank of Italy had been denied the right to open new branches in Los Angeles, because the State Superintendent had ruled that a bank with its head office in San Francisco should not have this privilege, in spite of the fact that the California Bank Act expressly provided for such branch operation. "The Bank Act clearly recognizes the right of every bank to establish branch offices at any points within the state", he continued, "and in this case there is shown a direct violation of the law by the State Superintendent."

In the evidence submitted McEnerney pointed out that when the applications of the Bank of Italy had been denied, Johnson had declared that Los Angeles was "over-banked" despite which statement he had subsequently issued to five competing banks in that city 47 permits for the establishment of branch offices. A record of permits issued includes:

Bank	Issued by Johnson	Total Issued Since 1921
Bank of Italy	1	3
Security Trust	11	25
Pacific So. West	13	39
Hellman Bank	13	22
Citizens Trust	8	25
California Bank	5	17
Bank of America	3	4
	54	135

Eustace Cullinan, counsel for the bank, inferred that collusion existed between Johnson and the Los Angeles Banks. He said that it was apparent that a plan had been agreed upon by the "favored five" institutions of that city, and in support of this contention he offered a letter written by one of the banks to the Superintendent's Office. The letter read: "We are submitting this application as one of the twenty-five agreed upon."

"The State Superintendent of Banks has attempted to secure a monopoly of banking in Los Angeles for five favored institutions of that city," said McEnerney. "To aid in the accomplishment of this purpose he has invoked a special departmental ruling that not only exceeds the statutory provisions of the laws of California, but also recalls in its language, the jargon of the industrial barons who were subsequently driven out by the Federal Government in enforcing the Sherman Act."

Naturalists have discovered seven new species of barnacles including, quite likely, the one in the office who never has a match of his own.—Le-

Wearing wonderful robes of gold and a turban studded with priceless jewels, Sir Hari Singh, who figured in the remarkable Robinson divorce case in London, when he was referred to as the "Mysterious Mr. A," was enthroned recently as the maharajah of Kashmir in India, the brilliant ceremony taking place at Jammu, India. New Government Measuring Device

In ancient times, it was the magic carpet; today it is the magic proving ring. This is a new device designed by the bureau of standards, the ring being able to measure the load in a testing machine, up to a maximum of more than 6,000 pounds. Capt. S. N. Petrenko of the engineering mechanics section, the inventor, is shown in the picture.

NOT A CAKE

This photograph, taken of a bride of the Black forest district of Germany, is very interesting. What looks like a cake is a crown or headdress, 12 inches in diameter and 8 inches high, weighing from 6 to 10 pounds, consisting of 10 rows of glass balls and beads in various colors and sizes, embellished with small mirrors and other glittering ornaments. It is worn by all maidens at festivities such as church, family, christening, wedding and social affairs. A bride wears this from early morning until the church ceremony and wedding dinner and until ten at night, when she dons housewifely garb to show her submission to her husband.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Worst March Blizzard in Years Leaves Damage in Its Trail.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

MARCH went out leaving in its trail one of the most severe March-end storms in years. Extending from beyond the Rocky mountains as far south as the Rio Grande and as far east as New England, the blizzard area included all regions except the Atlantic and Pacific seaboards.

Dispatches from all points over the Middle West told of loss of life and crippled transportation caused by the storm. Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana, and Missouri appeared to be the hardest hit. Rail and highway traffic was tied up at many points. At Kewanee, Ill., hundreds of automobiles were reported stalled in huge drifts. At Havana, Ill., a passenger train was held up by the heavy snowfall.

The situation in Wisconsin was no better. Eleven inches of snow were recorded in Milwaukee, with street car and bus transportation blocked. Points in Indiana reported one of the worst March storms in history. Fort Wayne and Indianapolis had transportation blocked. At Dubuque, Iowa, the snow measured 18 inches and 16 inches at Fort Madison. On the highways drifts of six feet were common.

Trains into Kansas City, Mo., were from 6 to 12 hours late, while in addition to the three Midland Valley trains stalled near Foraker, Okla., two Rock Island passenger trains were imbedded in drifts near Enid, Okla.

Other parts of the country, notably the Texas Panhandle, Louisiana, and Mississippi, also were affected. In southeastern Texas the storm reached tornado proportions, caused four deaths and property damage that is expected to exceed $1,000,000. Near Liberty, Texas, an 82-mile-an-hour gale destroyed 350 oil derricks.

ADVOCATES of the lakes-to-gulf waterway gained a strategic victory when the War department board of engineers, in its report on the improvement of the Illinois river, recommended the immediate construction of a nine-foot waterway with water diversion from Lake Michigan of 8,250 cubic feet per second.

DESPITE the recurrent declines in prices of stocks in Wall street, President Coolidge and his cabinet in surveying the situation throughout the country find conditions satisfactory.

The country is properous and business good, according to the reports made for the information of the President, and the prospect is that an even greater business expansion is at hand. There is little unemployment, and indications are that everyone who is willing to work at prevailing wages can get work. There is still a dull condition in the textile industry, but that, in the opinion of the President, is due to causes laid in post-war readjustments.

The President advises, however, an adherence to a conservative and cautious policy on the part of private enterprise and of the government itself. There should be no departure from the rules of economy and sound financing by either corporations or the government, he advises.

With income tax receipts larger even than anticipated, there is every indication that business will go on expanding. Probably the future revenue will prove so much larger than was expected that fears of a deficit in the next fiscal year will be dispelled. The President, however, has given grave consideration to the various items on the legislative program of the house on which his advice had been sought by Representative Tilson (Rep., Conn.) majority leader of that body. In reply he pointed out to Mr. Tilson that congress had reduced taxes more radically than the executive had thought safe at the time. The revenue, therefore, was reduced to such an extent that it would barely cover expenditures already authorized by law. Mr. Coolidge advised Mr. Tilson to proceed carefully on all proposals involving an increased expenditure. The bill to raise the retirement annuities of government employees involves such an increase, and while the President favors higher annuities, he is not sure that the government can afford to raise them as high as the bill asks.

Increase in the salaries of federal judges, on the other hand, is favored by the President, since this would not require a large increase in expenditures. The outlay of $50,000,000 for new public buildings and a like amount for waterway development is approved by the executive as additions on capital account, but the programs for increasing army and navy expenditures about $60,000,000 annually the President is inclined to view differently.

IF THERE is going to be any change in the prohibition policy, program or legislation, there must first be a change in the Constitution, according to Senator Borah (Rep., Idaho), in commenting on the referendum proposed by Senator Edge which asks the people to tell congress whether it "shall amend the national prohibition act, commonly called the Volstead act, so as to allow the manufacture, sale, transportation, and possession of beverages containing as great an amount of alcohol as is lawful under the Constitution."

Senator Borah declared that he saw no possible way to deal effectively with the liquor question so long as the Constitution prohibits the manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors. Consequently, he believes that the first question in any referendum should deal with the amending of the Constitution.

DEFINITE steps toward more rigid enforcement of the liquor laws were taken when the house unanimously approved the Cramton bill placing the entire prohibition unit under civil service, and when Brigadier General Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement, announced the creation of new divisions to check the flow of illicit beer and wine.

Thomas E. Stone, credited with engineering the roundup of the nation-wide beer ring in Cleveland recently, was named by General Andrews to be superintendent of brewery control.

General Andrews also announced the appointment of H. Keith Weeks, his secretary, to be superintendent of wine control, to direct efforts to halt diversion of sacramental wine into bootleg channels.

The Cramton bill would require all present employees of the prohibition unit to qualify in competitive examinations for their places within six months. The scheme, originally suggested by the wets, was more recently taken up by the drys.

PERMISSION has been granted by the prohibition division of the bureau of internal revenue to two large breweries to manufacture a malt liquor containing 3.75 per cent alcohol by volume and 25 per cent malt solids, to be sold to the public through drug stores without prescriptions or dealer permits.

The permits were issued to Anheuser-Busch company of St. Louis and the Pabst company of Milwaukee on a six months' trial during which the breweries are required to aid the prohibition division in the prevention of the sale of the malt liquor to the public for beverage purposes.

Director of Prohibition James E. Jones, gave his consent to the new brew after chemists of the bureau of internal revenue had reported that the tonic could not be used as a beverage.

The senate confirmed the nomination of Thomas F. Woodlock of New York as a member of the Interstate Commerce commission by a vote of 52 to 25.

Confirmation came after a five-hour executive session, in which the attack against Mr. Woodlock was led by Senator Wheeler (Dem., Mont.), who charged that he was under the influence of Wall street.

UNANIMOUS agreement on measures contemplating the creation of an army air corps, under a second assistant secretary of war, and authorizing the undertaking of a five-year construction program as a result of which 2,200 new planes would be added to the equipment of the existing air service, was reported from an executive session of the house military affairs committee.

The bill, it is said, will embody many of the major recommendations of the Morrow aircraft board as well as suggestions made by the Lampert investigating committee, the Lassiter board and Secretary of War Davis in his confidential program.

OPPONENTS of the Italian debt settlement were heard in the senate. Senator Robinson (Dem., Ark.) minority leader, led the attack. He assailed the "capacity to pay" theory governing the settlements made by the American debt commission. He demanded that Italy before receiving concessions from the United States show her good faith with respect to a disarmament conference. Senator Reed (Dem., Mo.) asserted that the United States can collect a larger sum than proposed from Italy "if we had some good red blood in our statesmen."

Senator Borah (Rep., Idaho), chairman of the committee on foreign relations; Senator Howell (Rep., Neb.), Senator Shipstead (Farmer-Labor, Minn.), and other opponents of the Italian settlement also participated in the discussion.

Senator Robinson said the "capacity to pay" standard is false and unreliable.

EFFORTS to solve the Tacna-Arica boundary dispute by the plebiscitary commission set up by President Coolidge have been abandoned for the present in favor of direct negotiations between the United States and the governments of Peru and Chile. Both Peru and Chile, the State department announced, have accepted the offers of mediation made by the United States and correspondence is now going on between Secretary Kellogg and the two governments over the question of the best method to go about settling the controversy.

THE French government's weakness was revealed in the chamber of deputies on the request for emergency funds to sustain state functions during April. War Minister Paul Painleve's demand for 10,000,000 francs ($350,000) credits to carry on operations in Syria were reduced 1,000,000 francs on the motion of Socialist Deputy Baron. The vote was 268 to 265.

Premier Briand, who feared a similar attack on the appropriation for the war in Morocco, rushed to the rescue. He pleaded with the deputies not to hamper him at a moment when peace in Morocco was just over the horizon. He defended the much criticized French refusal to consider Abd-el Krim's peace offers, and then announced France was about to make a counter offer to the rebellious Riffians. These terms are already formulated, he declared.

Deputy Baron, who has just returned from a first-hand investigation of the Syrian rebellion, said he thought it would be a good idea to hand over the Syrian mandate to Premier Mussolini of Italy.

GREAT BRITAIN will not continue to support Spain in her fight for a permanent seat in the League of Nations council and will definitely oppose any enlargement of that body except through the addition of Germany when the League assembly meets again in September.

This change in the British attitude was announced by Sir Austen Chamberlain when he made a complete private expose of the recent British policy at Geneva regarding the League of Nations to a group of members of the house of commons representing both opposition and government supporters. He kept nothing back, he declared, and even read confidential telegrams exchanged by the powers.

Brazil will not be permitted to continue to veto Germany's application for admission to the council in September, he declared. The League assembly will meet and re-elect temporary council members before the question of Germany's admission again comes up and unless Brazil agrees in advance to withhold her veto, she will not be given a temporary seat in the next council. The place will be given to some other South American power.

The foreign secretary declared British policy has been altered to meet public opinion as clearly expressed, and his pledge to support Spain's aspirations, which was one of the causes of the difficulties at the last League meeting, has been formally withdrawn.

Sailors Rescued From Fast-Sinking Vessel

New York.—Adding a brilliant chapter to the long tale of thrilling rescues at sea during storms of the past winter, the British tanker Shirvan was en route for Falmouth, England, with 28 seamen saved from the British freighter, Laleham, which left Newport News, Va., March 25.

The Shirvan, racing to the side of the stricken freighter in a gale 400 miles off Halifax, beat the liner Mauretania, which also had swerved from its course at the first cry for help. The Mauretania resumed its course for New York after Capt. A. H. Rostron had relayed a brief dispatch of the rescue by the Shirvan.

Captain Rostron, who was in command of the Carpathia when she rescued the survivors of the Titanic in 1912, reported that the Laleham was nearly on beam ends with all its lifeboats carried away. His message gave no details of the rescue, except that the Laleham was sinking rapidly.

Reports that the American freighter Blair was in trouble were cleared up when operators here received a wireless from its captain saying the freighter has experienced no trouble and had not sent out any distress call. Naval communications received an S. O. S. signed "S. S. Blair," but nothing further was heard. The Blair's position was given by the captain as 1,302 miles southeast of Delaware capes, and was bound for Philadelphia and New York from Greek and Spanish ports.

The Water Bearer

BAXTER

Synopsis.—Idly fishing Hermanos creek, in California, Caleb Warner, civil engineer, and a New Englander, is witness of the end of a coyote pulled down by two wolfhounds, urged on by a girl rider. Admiring the hounds, he introduces himself, and learns her name is Clinton. With western hospitality she invites him to the ranch to meet her father. At the Clinton home Warner learns his new friend's name is Betty. He is welcomed by her father, Southern Civil war veteran and owner of Hermanos valley. Warner tells them something of his ambitions and his feeling that he is destined to be a "Water-Bearer."

—3—

"Thees knife is for all the enemy of El Nido." He patted the hilt of the weapon with a nod of complacency and a keen look at Caleb, who was wonderingly amused. Was the man half crazed? Did his twisted brain consider the stranger he had been ordered to escort as a possible menace to El Nido?

"The puma was, an enemy?" he asked.

"Si senor. Eet lay there on that bough that overhangs the stream, the sycamore. On that bank, on the turf, below, play la senorita Betty. Her mother is—then dead one year, la senorita she is two. Dios! She is in charge of Maria an' she, thees Maria, has tie her by one long reebbon to the trunk so she shall play weeth her flowers an' not fall een the creek. May the Mother of God forgeev Maria! An' me also, Luis Padilla! Senor, I am in love with Maria, we are to wed. I hav' leave my work, I hav' follow down the canyon to talk weeth Maria! We hav' a leetle quarrel, jus' to make up. She run a leetle way from me. I follow. In the wood we make up. Si. An' we forget the senorita.

"Dios! Of a sudden Maria scream an' point. There is the puma on the bough. Eet crouch to spreeng. The leetle one look up an' laugh at the great cat. An' I make to leap. Then I am young an' very queek, senor. Sanctissima Maria, eet is muy bueno, eet is ver' good that I am!"

Now Padilla was rolling a cigarette with a murmured, "eef you permit, senor," riding out of the water up to the little plateau where the thing had happened with a face as suddenly void of emotion as if a light had been switched off behind a shade, intent only upon inhaling the smoke of his cigarette, seated with one leg across the saddle horn. Caleb and the Don had followed him. The last puff taken, Padilla flung away the wisp of the cigarette end into the stream with a savage gesture and slid to the ground. Again he was in his role, now giving pantomime to aid his words in conjuring up the happening.

"Eet is by the mercy of the Good God that Maria tie the child, senor. I could not reach the leetle senorita in time but I reach that reebbon an' snatch her back—so! Jus' as that puma spreeng. I see heem above me, all spread. He blot out the sun an', as I snatch back the baby, he yell, like El Diablo himself. His eyes shine, his teeth, I see his red mouth, I smell the steenk of his breath, I try to dodge as he strike an' I too strike, weeth my knife. He come on me like the fall of the cleef. We roll over like two beast. Senor, I cannot tell jus' what happen. Eet is not the one who fight who can tell the story. Maria, she did not see. She hol' the baby in her arm, an' she see only the end.

"But I know I am all blood, my blood an' the blood of that lion, hot. The smell of eet make us both mad. I theenk he has empty my belly. Dios, he claw me like thees!" And Padilla raked himself down his shrunken side with suggestive fingers. He slash my face one time when I dodge. One time I am down an eet is growin' all dark. He take my arm like a dog take a bone. Senor, I hear those teeth on my bone. An' I stab, I steek, I cut! We roll into the creek. Me, I theenk I am almos' gone that time, but the water bring me back. Eet flow from me red with my blood. But eet flow red from the puma also. Senor, he is dead—muerte!

"When I get better I find the vaqueros who breeng me back to El Nido take also the body of that lion. They hev' for me that skin. Senor, eet is not much good, that skin. My knife has spoil' eet. But there is enough to make two little rug'. One for Maria, one for me. Those rug' each in our two room'—Maria an' mine—beneath the crucifix. When we pray we kneel on those rug an' we never forget our oath."

Again the fire of his speech suddenly died out and he rolled another cigarette.

"You are not married to Maria?" asked Caleb.

"No, senor. That was seventeen years ago. We wait. Eet was the great fault of Maria, also of me, that we leave la senorita. Senor Clinton did not punish. He geev me praise an' offer me money which I do not take. But we—we punish each the other. We punish that love which make us careless. We take the oath to God and the Mother of God that we watch always over the senorita. Some day perhaps she marry, then Maria an' Luis marry also, eef she is marry the good man who take care of her. But—eef any man try to harm the senorita, I Luis Padilla, who keel the puma, I am still strong an' I still hav' this knife!"

Once more he half drew the steel from the sheath and thrust it back. Then he caught the horn of the saddle with one hand, twisted the fingers of the other in the mane of the mustang, set foot in stirrup and, as the brute swung in a plunging half-circle, held himself close-pressed to its withers before, with a lithe move, he made the saddle.

"We mus' go along," he said. "The senor mus' not lose his train."

Those were the last words he spoke until they reached the station a few minutes before the train pulled in. He waited until Caleb mounted the platform, then, with an "Adios, senor," was gone, mastering the curvetting mustang and leading El Don.

Caleb, in the smoker, concluded at last that the Mexican's fidelity, tinged perhaps, by some injury in the fight from which he had never recovered, some slight lesion in his brain from the strain and excitement, had made him a monomaniac concerning the safety of his young mistress. He possessed a jealousy that he shared with Maria. It was an obsession with both of them.

"I'd hate to be the man who had Luis Padilla on his track," he told himself, wondering if the ample Maria would also be transformed into a whirlwind of avenging fury. Here was a sample of the wilder West. It was a far cry to New England. Somehow the experience did not strike him as altogether incongruous, far-fetched.

And he had learned the age of Betty Clinton.

CHAPTER III

Cox

Hold up your right hand, with the thumb and forefinger well apart. Do the same with your left and bring it up above your right, so that the tips of the forefingers join, but those of the thumb are a little apart. The oval gap represents the great bay of Golden, a mighty harbor, deep enough for all the navies of the world to swim in, a noble anchorage for commerce, dotted here and there with islands. Far to the northeast, near the knuckle of your left forefinger, a river flows in, tapping two mighty valleys, too far away to serve Golden with water.

Opposite Golden, across the narrow strait where bay meets sea, looms the great mount of Sereno, covered with redwoods that extend back of it, up to the northern boundary of the state, a region, half exploited, of great beauty, vast logging prospects, partly developed, of small, rich valleys.

Looking to the sea, to Sereno, across the bay to the mainland, Golden queens it over an unsurpassed panorama. On Semaphore hill, where ships were signaled in the earlier days, Caleb Warner shared the apartment of Ted Baxter, on the top floor of an ambitious apartment building.

Caleb, with none too large a capital, would have chosen a less expensive, less pretentious dwelling, but he had come there first as a guest of Baxter and now they divided two bedrooms, a bathroom and a tiny sitting room, at equal expense. In the old Columbian days the two had become fast friends. It had been to a large extent the attraction of opposites. Caleb, studying with enthusiasm, taking his games seriously. Baxter, handsome, irresponsible, generous, blessed with an array of superficial qualities that made him a universal favorite. And with a tendency to dissipation that Caleb fancied he had somewhat checked.

But that was years ago and he found Baxter fairly embarked upon the pastime of spending all the money he could get hold of in the pursuit of amusement—"getting all the fun he could out of life"—he styled it. Caleb fancied he inherited this facility from his mother, a widow who spent her time at fashionable resorts, West and East, as fashion demanded, who tried to forget her age and who let her son, to a great extent, travel his own path while she followed hers. Mrs. Baxter held the command of the Baxter estate. She made her son a fairly liberal allowance but kept the larger portion for herself. Ultimately, it seemed, it would come to Baxter, if his mother remained unmarried.

The two met perhaps four times a year, all told, for brief acquaintanceship. The relationship between them seemed annulled. Mrs. Baxter drew the line at having her son appear at the fashionable resorts where she was stopping. That was a tacit understanding between them. Doubtless the widow objected to having a twenty-six-year-old child inject himself into her realm of arrested maturity. She had deliberately set back her clock of life. The presence of Ted corrected Time with too obvious a hand.

Caleb reached the apartment a little after noon and found his friend still in bed. Baxter surveyed him with a grin that turned into a yawn.

"Nice time for you to be coming home," he challenged. "Where's your New England conscience? Stopping out all night! Give an account of yourself, you reprobate. Never preach to me again. You're degenerating, Cal, my son. Have a gin fizz? I was out to the Beach last night. With a peach. With two peaches, in fact, and another caballero. The party gathers again this evening and I'm flat. What time is it? I think I'll get up. We'll have lunch at the club. Cox is in town. The man I've wanted you to meet. One of the Big Siege Guns of the coast."

Baxter regaled Caleb with an account of the trip of the night before along the beach, visiting every boulevard resort. The "peach," it appeared, was a blond stenographer who was a "thoroughbred sport and a winner." By which Caleb tacitly understood that the young lady had acquiesced in every suggestion of Baxter's without demur. Caleb broke the tale to make his own change of clothes, to shave and take his bath. Baxter ordered luncheon at the club over the telephone, to be ready in half an hour, then switched to the garage for his car to be brought round in twenty minutes.

While they waited he rounded on Caleb and demanded a statement of what he had been up to.

Caleb told his story. He saw no reason why he should conceal anything and yet he had some reluctance to describe his visit at El Nido in detail. He did not fancy that Baxter would see—or would have seen—the place and its people in the same light that he did. His reservations betrayed him. Baxter seized upon the mention of the girl with a whoop and quizzed him to the limit.

"You sly fox," he cried. "A beauty with chestnut tresses, riding like a centaur after borzois, chasing a coyote—and catching Caleb Warner! She has you on the hip, Caleb. Romance has blossomed in your sterile Massachusetts soul. Sir Galahad and the Princess of the Hidden Valley! It's a moving picture.

"I've heard of the Clintons," he rattled on. "Seen the girl, too, at the dog show, though I don't remember the chestnut locks. Next time you go a-fishing, my wandering gallant, I go with you."

"Here's your car," said Caleb dryly, looking out of the window.

Baxter gave him a bantering look and dropped the subject.

The club known as The Altruists is situated downtown, an institution grown from an early membership of writers and artists, with two big rooms and free-and-easy privileges, to affluence and influence.

It was full of good-natured men sharing a camaraderie that was new to Caleb's conception of club life. And with them all Baxter was hail-fellow-well-met. A dining-room steward sought him out and informed him that lunch would be on the table in ten minutes.

"We'll look around a bit," said Baxter. "And I must get you a card. Later we'll have you up for membership." He led the way to a great room with a gilded ceiling and many tables and cozy corners beneath it. The walls were covered with cartoons drawn by the artists of the club, commemorating past and current events, caricaturing the bright lights among them. Baxter nodded to every one in the room, it seemed, and it was well filled. There was a general air of badinage, the members reminded Caleb of grown-up boys in recess from school.

They worked their way through to a lounge for cigarettes and Baxter pointed out celebrities.

As they settled themselves at the places reserved for them, Baxter indicated a group of men at a round table not far from them.

Padilla's story indicates that he is an unknown quantity to be reckoned with. What sort of factor is Baxter?

Famous "Flat Arch" in Church of St. Domingo

One of the objects which attracts the visitor in Panama is the "flat arch" in the ruins of the church of San Domingo. The edifice itself was built by Dominican monks in the palmy days of Spain's power. According to tradition, when the supports were removed from one of the chief archways it tumbled to the ground. Another was built in its place, but it too fell. The experiment was repeated the third time with a similar result.

At last an old monk, who was not supposed to know anything about architecture or engineering, had a dream in which was presented to him a plan for constructing an arch which would stand, relates a writer in Pathfinder Magazine. A structure was built according to the plan thus evolved. The arch was almost flat and made of ordinary brick. Everybody in Panama—with one exception—expected to see this arch fall as the others had done. But the old monk who had conceived it had faith in his dream. When the supports were removed he stood under the arch with folded arms. It did not fall, and it never has fallen, for to this day it stands there amid the ruins of the church in a wonderful state of preservation.

Pigeons Long Popular

For thousands of years pigeons have been favorite birds with the people of many countries and in many climes, and the popularity is as great today, or greater, as in any other period of which history speaks. Rameses III loved pigeons, donated some of the finest for use in the temple of Thebes, and Pliny told in his writings of birds selling for sums that would be about $75 in money of today. He thought that price rather high, but pigeons have sold in this country within the last year for $1,300. Pigeon racing is the popular sport of Belgium.—Ohio State Journal.

"Bore Waves"

A high tidal wave, or succession of two or three, rushing up a narrow estuary or tidal river, as at change of tide is called a bore wave. They occur in places where the tides rise and fall a considerable number of feet, as in the Bay of Fundy and various river in Europe and other parts of the world. As the tide advances the water is suddenly thrown in as if in a mass, and then pursues its course up the estuary or river and in opposition to the current, presenting a volume of water moving with great rapidity and resistless force and with a height varying from two to three feet to more than twelve feet. In the case of the Tsien-Tangkiang the bore is said to have a rise of twenty feet and to advance with a loud roar at the rate of ten miles an hour.

A FEW SANDWICHES

For the afternoon tea there is no dainty so welcome as a tasty sandwich. They may be prepared and ready hours before serving.

The following hot sandwich is one quickly prepared and very attractive:

Five o'Clock Tea Sandwich.—Work a cream cheese with a wooden spoon until smooth enough to spread. Season with salt and paprika. Spread thin salted crackers with the cheese then cover with marshmallows cut into halves to fit the crackers. Cover with another cracker and place in moderate oven until the cheese and mallows melt. Serve hot.

California Sandwiches.—Cut sandwich bread into one-fourth inch slices. Spread three slices thinly with mayonnaise (on both sides); spread two slices on but one side. Put mild green peppers through the meat chopper twice, put mild red peppers through the meat chopper twice, keep separate. Squeeze dry in a cloth to remove moisture, season with grated onion and moisten with mayonnaise. Put between slices of bread. There should be two layers of green pepper and one of red. Trim off the crusts and fold in a napkin; place under a weight. After several hours cut into one-fourth inch slices for serving.

Jewish Cheese Sandwiches.—Mix one-fourth of a cupful of sweet butter with one large-sized cream cheese, add one teaspoonful of chopped capers, one shallot chopped fine, one-half teaspoonful of caraway seed and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Mix thoroughly and pack solidly into a small brick mold. Let stand in the refrigerator over night to ripen. Remove from the mold, cut into thin slices and put between buttered rye bread spread thinly with French mustard. Press edges together, trim and serve with coffee.

Green Sandwiches.—Chop green pepper, Bermuda onion and a sprig or two of parsley, mix all together in proportions to suit the taste, adding mayonnaise or cooked salad dressing. The vegetables will need to be squeezed from their juices, then add the salad dressing. Serve on buttered white bread.

Appetizing Appetizers.

Hors d'oeuvres are tidbits to stimulate the appetite, rather than hearty dishes which will satisfy. They may be either hot or cold, but there should be no question as to their daintiness.

Appetizers should blend with the rest of the meal. The following is a hot one:

Tomato Savory.—Select six medium sized firm tomatoes and cut cone shaped pieces from the stem end. Mix one teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth of a teaspoonful of pepper, one teaspoonful of sugar and sprinkle the tomatoes. Bake in a moderate oven until the tomatoes are soft but unbroken. Remove to individual serving dishes and keep hot. Heat one-half cupful of heavy cream mixed with the juice from the baking pan. Thicken slightly with one-half teaspoonful of flour blended with the same amount of butter. Pour the sauce hot over the tomatoes and serve hot with crisp crackers.

Rhubarb and Raisin Jelly.—Cook three dozen large raisins in boiling water to cover until tender. Add more water if needed. Cook until tender two cupfuls of diced rhubarb cut into small bits, with one cupful of sugar; shake the pan to keep the pieces unbroken. Soften two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in half a cupful of cold water, then add the raisins and the hot liquid to the gelatin, add the rhubarb and turn into a mold. When cold and firm, serve unmolded with whipped cream. There should be a scant quart of the ingredients, counting all the liquids used.

Sardine Canape.—For six portions heat twelve medium sized sardines in one cupful of tomato catsup to which has been added one tablespoonful of lemon juice. Butter six strips of toast, each large enough to hold two sardines. When the sardines are heated through, remove from the sauce, roll in fine buttered crumbs, and place in pairs on each piece of toast. Pour a little of the sauce over each portion and garnish with watercress.

Chicken and Corn Pudding.—Take two cupfuls of cold cooked chicken, one cupful of sweet milk or chicken stock, one pint of sweet corn, two eggs, salt and pepper and one teaspoonful of sugar. Cut the chicken into small bits, season with parsley, onion, salt and pepper. Mix the corn and milk, add the beaten eggs and place the chicken in the bottom of the pan; pour over the corn mixture and bake in a moderate oven until a delicate brown. Serve at once with white sauce.

Variety is more essential with a person who is ill than those able to eat all kinds of food, as those who are ill have poor appetites and tire very quickly of sameness in food.

Liking Nature

There appears to be no end to my liking for nature; whether a tree is so leafy that it reduces the whole heavens to a few blue eyes, or whether the twigs are as thin and bare as the birds' legs that use them—it is all the same to me.—W. H. Davies, in Later Days.

MIDDLE AGE BRINGS NEW INTERESTS

For Women in Good Health

MRS. HARVEY TUCKER
408 WALKER STREET, SHELBYVILLE, IND.

"Grow old along with me,
The best is yet to be"

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women of middle age, say they owe their vigor and health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Those who have learned through their own experience the merit of this dependable medicine are enthusiastic in recommending it to their friends and neighbors.

"I had been in bad condition for three months. I could not do my work. One day I read what your medicine had done and just had a feeling that it would help me, so I sent and got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had only taken half a bottle when I got up and started to do my work. It gave me an appetite, and helped me wonderfully. I can not praise this medicine highly enough. I surely will advise all women and girls to take it, and they don't have to use rouge to look healthy. My two daughters are taking it now and one is also using the Sanative Wash. I am willing to have you use this testimonial and I will answer letters from women asking about the medicine."—Mrs. Harvey Tucker, 408 Walker St., Shelbyville, Indiana.

"I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the little books you give away and began to take the medicine. After the first few bottles I began to feel better and could eat better and had fewer headaches. I feel like a different person. At anytime that I don't feel good I take the Vegetable Compound again, as I always keep a bottle on hand. You may use this letter for every word is true. I will answer any letters sent to me."—Mrs. Jennie Bollerman, 516 Smith St., West Hoboken, N. J.

High Praise Accorded to American Hospitals

Brinck Eliassen, a Danish physician who has just returned home from a visit to the United States, is enthusiastic about American hospitals. He was amazed by the evidence of wealth and speaks in terms of high praise of the generosity of American millionaires toward the hospitals. Owing to the large amounts given for the benefit of the sick people, he says, "American hospitals are probably the best equipped in the world." Doctor Eliassen's opinion of hygienic conditions in American hospitals, excepting the very modern ones, is more critical. "In Chicago," he says, "I saw awful places provided for the sick poor." In the course of an interview the doctor asserted that during the coming summer 200 American surgeons would visit Scandinavia under the escort of a Danish woman, Miss Carstensen, secretary at the medical academy in New York.

Ruction Ended in General "Stick Up"

Ralph Paine, whose posthumous novel, "In Zanzibar," was recently published, once had a job in a small grocery that catered to the negro trade employed in a near-by sawmill. Molasses was a favorite commodity, and the job of getting sufficient containers for it a problem until young Paine advocated paper bags, which worked so long as the customer was careful in carrying them.

One night the store was crowded with negroes who had come for their week's supply of molasses. Two of them got into an argument. Instead of drawing a razor, one of the negroes swung his bag of molasses and burst it on the other's head. The explosion touched off a general riot. As Paine described it, "That store rained molasses. Every nigger's wool was full of it." Ensued rapidly razors, police, complete wreck of the store, and unjustly, it would appear, Paine's dismissal.—Los Angeles Times.

Ancient Manuscript

The earliest specimen of illuminated manuscript known to us was the "Codex Argenteus." It was an extremely beautiful quarto volume, with leaves of vellum stained a rich violet color, and the chirography done in silver.

When it was discovered in the Benedictine abbey of Werden about 1517 it was claimed to be the only specimen extant of the ancient tongue from which our language is descended. It came into the possession of Queen Christina of Sweden, who had it reproduced, and then passed to Gabriel de la Gardie, who bought it and presented it to the University of Upsal.

Estimate Water Supply

In planning a waterworks system there really is no established basis for figuring how much water is required for a city in proportion to the population. Engineers do not agree upon the point, the estimates varying from 100 to 150 gallons per day for each resident of the district to be supplied, at the expiration of 20 years from the inauguration of the supply. The prospective population is estimated from the records of the past growth of the district and the growth of districts of similar character.

News of Menlo Park

Laurel Court Scene of Banquet

Laurel Court resounded with laughter and mirth and merriment last Monday evening and the big banquet hall was a scene of joy as it often was in the days of yore when Mr. Gansel, the Austrian consul, a gay society man, used to entertain the crown heads of Europe there and later when Edgar Mills, the millionaire, wined and dined his friends. The event on Monday evening was only an echo of the past, minus the wine and champagne that flowed freely in the days long before Mr. Volstead was heard of.

The first banquet of the Menlo Park Chamber of Commerce was a decided success and much credit is due E. E. Quayle who had the affair in charge. The big banquet hall was crowded, the overflow having been accommodated in an adjoining room. Over one hundred members of the chamber and their wives enjoyed the menu and the splendid talks made by the invited guests.

At the close of the feast E. E. Quayle, in a few well chosen words commended the spirit of the occasion introduced J. H. Sullivan, president of the Menlo Park Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Sullivan made a laudatory address setting forth the objects of the organization, showing the advantages that were being gained by the chamber. He launched out into a strong advocacy of the merging of the county with San Francisco. He said that the county would have cheaper transportation, a sufficient supply of water and cheap terminal feright rates.

Mr. Quayle then read a telegram from Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, Washington, regretting his inability to be present and wishing the Menlo Park Chamber of Commerce every success. The announcement was greated with a tremendous applause showing the popularity of the senator in his home town.

This was followed by Judge Bird of San Mateo who delivered an eloquent address on the beauties and possibilities of the peninsula, contrasting its advantages with Los Angeles, where he lived for many years.

E. Clay Miller, president of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, made a masterful speech in which he invited the people of San Mateo county to merge with San Francisco. He said that the city had only one way to grow and that was down the peninsula and that the latter would advance as the city went ahead.

Mr. Sutton, president of the Dumbarton Bridge Company, made a short but forcible address, saying that the bridge would be completed in a short time, in fact, that it was almost finished now as only three more spans had to be placed. These spans were being floated down the bay from the city. Mr. Sutton declared that the approaches to the bridge would be completed in three months and that vehicles would be going over the bridge by September. This announcement was greeted by applause.

Mr. Eckert, assistant engineer of San Francisco, made the Hetch Hetchy system would be in San Francisco in five years. He told of the big project, now completed, in bringing the pipes across the bay at Dumbarton that brings the water from the Calaveras dam to the Spring Valley lakes and that in time these pipes would be used by the Hetch Hetchy system.

E. E. Quayle in introducing Mayor James Rolph said that the people of Menlo Park may not have an opportunity to vote for him as mayor, but that they may have a chance to vote for him as governor. This brought forth thunderous applause. The mayor delivered a neat and well-prazed speech, saying that he was no stranger to Menlo Park as he loitered here almost every week on his way to his Alpine ranch. Mr. Rolph spoke eloquently about the possibilities of the peninsula and predicted that vast sky scrapers would go up here when the city began to expand down the peninsula. He presented a beautiful word picture of the future of San Mateo county. He was strong for annexation. He was loudly applauded as he took his seat.

Rumor of Large Land Sale

A rumor was afloat yesterday to the effect that the Spring Valley Water Company had sold 380 acres of its water front property south of the Dumbarton bridge to an eastern syndicate for an industrial site for several large factories. It was said this company is to spend $2,000,000 in buildings and equipment for the manufacture of automobiles.

Mayor Subject to Correction

Mayor James Rolph was slightly mistaken when he said at the banquet Monday night that Menlo Park derived its name from a small town in Ireland, the birth place of James R. Doyle of the firm of Duff and Doyle. Oliver and McGlynn in 1856 purchased a large tract of land here facing on the highway. They erected two imposing gates to the entrances of the property on the highway and "Menlo Park" was painted on them. Both men were raised together and were born near a castle outside of Dublin, known as Menlough. They named their newly acquired property Menlo Park after their birthplace. The town was practically carved from this holding and derived its name from the gates.

The question of incorporation has been fully discussed by the citizens the advantages of incorporation placed before the people plainly and from what we have learned, the issue will receive an overwhelming vote. So on Monday, let every progressive citizen vote "Yes" and place Menlo Park, the fairest gem of the galaxy of communities on the peninsula, on the map. Be sure you vote "Yes."

OLD RESIDENT RECALLS EARLY DAYS IN ATHERTON

Thomas H. Griffin, connected with the Southern Pacific Railroad Company for forty-one years, twenty-two of which he was the customs attorney for the company, visited Redwood City on Tuesday last and surveyed the scenes of his boyhood. He looked in vain for the old timers whom he used to know but the only survivors of the long ago were County Treasurer P. P. Chamberlain, who has held that office for forty-six years and Daniel Mullen, the retired harness maker and to those he recounted the happy days of the sixties and seventies when Redwood City was a small village.

Mr. Griffin, as a young man studied law in the office of General William L. Barnes, one of the greatest lawyers of his time, and one of the most eloquent orators the state has ever produced. Mr. Griffin became affiliated with the Southern Pacific Company in 1881. As a customs attorney he became popular with the government heads and was known for his strict integrity and honesty. His word was law with the custom officials. He was trusted by them always playing fair with the government. The officials knew this and thus his work was made easy and the company was given the best service through his honesty. Mr. Griffin on the first of the present year retired to enjoy the fruits of his long life of service on a substantial pension at the age of seventy-one years.

Mr. Griffin first came to Redwood City in 1865, spending his vacations and week ends at the hospitable home of the late John Hayes, who owned an estate just south of town bordering on Atherton. Hayes was a well known character of early days. He came here as a young man, marrying the widow Kisling who owned the estate consisting of 320 acres, highly cultivated. This home was known throughout the state for its hospitality, and for the lavishness of its entertainments. Mrs. Kisling had a son and a daughter who became prominent in San Francisco in after years. Both are now dead. Hayes was a brother of Colonel Thomas Hayes, after whom Hayes Valley in San Francisco is named. He owned all the property in that section of the city. The colonel spent much time with his brother here, both being idenitfied with the early history of San Francisco. Colonel Thomas Hayes is known to fame as one of the seconds for Senator Broderick in the Broderick-Terry Duel that was fought near Lake Merced in this county in 1859. In the first discharge of arms, Broderick fell fatally wounded. Hayes was the first of the seconds to reach him after he had fallen. Seeing the seriousness of the wound, Hayes advised removing Broderick to his brother's home here that he might be away from the mob and the annoying inquiries of his friends but the senator was too weak for the long journey and instead was taken to a nearby farm house where he passed away two days later. Hayes never left the side of his friend until he died. Perhaps this is the first time the incident regarding the proposed removal of the senator to Redwood City after the fatal shot was fired has been published. It is, however, correct for it was related to the writer many years ago by Miss Kisling, afterwars Mrs. Wilson. After the duel Colonel Hayes came to Redwood City and was met at the Hayes home by Miss Kisling, the pretty step-daughter of his brother, John Hayes. To her the colonel told all the grewsome incidents of the famous duel. He some time afterwards accompanied her to the spot where the duel was fought and many times later she visited the hallowed place then in the midst of a forest of trees and underbrush.

Miss Kisling became a noted writer and a great many of the stories of the duel now extant, were written by her. When the Native Sons of the Golden West desired to find the exact spot where the tragic duel was fought in order to dedicate the place with a suitable memorial, Miss Kisling or Mrs. Wilson was selected to point out the location and she did so with accuracy, even telling of the trees that stood near by for she knew them in her girlhood. The memorial plate suitably inscribed was put in place with impressive ceremony. This will mark forever the place where the tradegy occured, which is a blot on the fair history of the State of California. Mrs. Wilson passed away in 1923.

A portion of the old Hayes house an imposing structure in the early days, still stands, a link between the present and the past. Mr. Griffin went out to it on Tuesday and with emotion gazed upon the historic old structure where he spent many of the happy days of his youth.

Shortly after the Southern Pacific Company began running trains down the peninsula it established a depot near the Hayes home and called it Selby, after Mayor Thomas H. Selby, who had purchased a large tract of land close by. Selby was mayor of San Francisco in the early seventies and after retiring from office made his home at Selby, now Atherton. He passed away in 1876. Later the name of the station was changed to Fair Oaks and some years ago to Atherton, after the name of Faxon D. Atherton, a pioneer who owned a large ranch adjoining that of Selby. At this station Griffin, in boyhood, would alight from San Francisco, to run over to the Hayes home where he always was a welcomed visitor. Mr. Griffin tells of killing ducks from the back porch of the home and shooting quail by the hundreds on the Middlefield road, closeby. That locality was the mecca of the hunter in those days of more than a half century ago.

Mr. Griffin recalls a pretty romance that was staged at the estates of the Hayes a an early date. William Casey, the major domo of the estate, paid court to Fannie Hodges, the pretty adopted daughter of John Hayes and a popular member of the household. Casey was a handsome, sterling youth. One night when the Hayes family was entertaining a number of San Francisco friends of prominence the young lady slipped out from the gay throng and met young Casey at the front gate where a spanking team awaited the pair. They sped to San Mateo, where Father Dempsey made "two hearts beat as one." The young couple after the honeymoon returned and were received in open arms by the Hayes. Casey afterwards moved to Menlo Park, where he became a large property holder. The sons and daughters of the couple are prominent throughout the state. The actors in the romance have long since passed from earthly scenes.

The big estate is now subdivided in small lots and where hundreds of cattle roamed and where wild ducks and geese came and went at will, now a fair sized city is springing up. Its early history and romance is only recalled by such visitors as Mr. Griffin, who in boyhood knew it well and who is thrilled in telling of those care free days, those days of long ago.
